

One for All & All for One: Collaboration is a Lifesaving Strategy

- Preventing animal cruelty (i.e. Laurens County, Charleston Animal Society, Anderson County PAWS and HSUS). An initial puppy mill bust led with the support of No Kill South Carolina made Laurens County understand that it was possible to fight animal cruelty in their county- they've saved more than 1150 animals saved from inhumane conditions since the beginning of 2020!
- Moving animals to safety (i.e. Chester County Animal Care & Control and 17 SC animal welfare organizations).
- Sharing the knowledge (i.e. Charleston Animal Society) - Charleston Animal Society has hosted several of No Kill South Carolina Partners to train and mentor them in lifesaving strategies, totaling 81 hours of training and 87 participants.

"I cannot thank you (NKSC) enough for going above and beyond to help us! When we needed it you guys all came to our rescue very quickly." - Sergeant Geoff Brown, Laurens County Sheriff's Office

Anderson County P.A.W.S. - From overcrowded to empty!
